

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides blue-light emitting compounds capable of emitting blue light at a high luminance for a long time upon the application of electric energy, processes of producing the compounds, and luminescent elements including the blue light-emitting compounds. One of the compounds according to the present invention is characterized by the chemical structure represented by formula (1).

